This cartoon is from issue #1, which was not actually numbered, but called the “Preview Edition” and focused almost exclusively on South Africa, the anti-apartheid movement, and libraries involvement in sanctions against apartheid institutions—a hotly debated topic within the American Library Association at the time. This issue was purposefully intended as a contribution to the discussions taking place at ALA in the summer of 1990. Peter McDonald provided this cartoon as an illustration.

Adv.Committee on a Telecommunicatforce to imperialism. Every time President Bush speaks of a "new world order", we must ask him if it guarantees our basic needs as well as our right to receive information and our right to communicate.

This paper was presented at a plenary session on “Global Crises: Media, Democracy and the Left” at the Midwest Radical Scholars and Activists Conference held in Chicago on October 19, 1990.

200. GROUNDHOG DAY CARDS. In 1975, the Chicago Surrealist Group began to send Groundhog Day cards to friends around the world. Each year, the card was drawn by a different participant: 1) Ron Pope (a drawing, 1975), which also contained the lyrics to Sonny Boy Williamson’s Groundhog Blues; 2) Franklin Rosemont (a collage, 1976); 3) A. K. El Janaby (collage, 1977); 4) Franklin Rosemont (drawings/collage, 1978); 5) Hal Rammel (drawing, 1979); 6) Debra Taub (collage, 1981); 7) Robert Green (drawing, 1982); 8) Penelope Rosemont (collage, 1983).

Quote

This image appeared in #15 and was provided by Lincoln Cushing who also contributed a report of his work to document, collect, catalogue and preserve post-revolution Cuban posters. The lines missing from the poem at the top of the page, which ended an article concerning the German librarians group AKRIBIE, are:

In other words
Criticism is not a complaint...
