

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Jenny Bossaller finished her PhD in Library Science at the University of Missouri in May. She became an Assistant Professor at the School of Library and Information Science at the University of Southern Mississippi in August.

Angel Castillo has a Bachelors Degree in Library Science from The National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM). He is a member of the Mexican Section of the Trinational Coalition in Defense of Public Education.

Cody Hennesy is a reference and instruction librarian at California College of the Arts in Oakland.

Eileen H. Kramer is Instructional Design Librarian at Georgia Perimeter College in Clarksdon, Georgia.

Carlos Martinez has a Bachelors Degree in Library Science from The National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM) and Master Studies in History from the same university.

Kathleen de la Peña McCook is Distinguished University Professor at the University of South Florida. She was President of the Association for Library and Information Science Education (ALISE) in 1988; received the Beta Phi Mu Award for distinguished service to education for librarianship in 2003 and is author of Introduction to Public Librarianship (2004). She is an active member of the United Faculty of Florida, AFT Local 7463.

Doug Raber is on the faculty of the School of Information Science and Learning Technologies at the University of Missouri.

Miriam Rigby has an MA in Anthropology and received her MLIS in June from the University of Washington. She is actively hunting for work as a reference librarian and is impervious to rain.

Toni Samek is Professor and Graduate Coordinator at the School of Library Information Studies, University of Alberta and author of the books Librarianship and Human Rights: A twenty-first century guide (2007) and Intellectual Freedom and Social Responsibility in American Librarianship, 1967-1974 (2001). Toni is the first winner of the Library Journal Teaching Award. Toni currently sits on the Canadian Association of University Teacher's Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee.

Scott J. Simon is a musician and information scientist in the School of Library and Information Sciences at the University of South Florida. He completed studies in both Music Performance and Music Information Retrieval while earning his Ph.D. in Interdisciplinary Information Science at the University of North Texas.